Newsletter of The Greater Philadelphia Society of Clinical Hypnosis
Volume 15 Number 4 Fall 2019

FROM THE PRESIDENT - Anita ( Annie ) Goldenberg, MSS, RPT, LCSW

Hello All,

I am happy to say we are still here and getting ready to bring you our next season of workshops. It is also time to look forward in terms of what you, our membership, want and need from this Society. In that regard, we are planning something a little different for our September 22 workshop/meeting. A letter will be going out letting you know about the possibility of presenting a case at that meeting, followed by consultation with anyone who has experience or knowledge in the area of your case. We hope this will be a great learning experience.

We also hope that you will stay for a bit after the workshop to give us ( the GPSCH Board of Governors ) feedback on what you would like to see happen going forward. "The times they are a changing" as the old song many of you may not remember, goes, and Societies like ours need to change to meet the needs of its constituents. We have had many discussions about this at GPSCH and we have come to the conclusion that we need your input. So, come to this September workshop and let us know how GPSCH can serve you in your professional life and in your continued exploration, learning and use of hypnosis. It still amazes me how long hypnosis has been around and how many things it has given rise to by other names.

And speaking of looking to the future, the GPSCH Board of Governors will be seeking new officers for the Spring of 2020 and we are looking for interested people to come and be part of shaping that part of our future. Interested? Shoot us an email.

As I write this letter, the flowers in my garden are in full bloom and I am already thinking of what needs pruning for the late Summer, and what to plant for the next season. What a delicate balance between enjoying and being present in the moment and looking to the next season. That said, I guess I will go and gather some of those magnificent flowers.

Enjoy the rest of the Summer and see you in the Fall.

From All of Us at GPSCH,

Annie Goldenberg
President, GPSCH

FOR YOUR CONSIDERATION

CNN: News/Culture's New Nomenclature

Readers of this column have come to know my keen interest in language. So, here are some additional observations for your consideration. During a presentation by a pharmaceutical company representative touting a new antidepressant, the speaker uttered, "At the end of the day" 10 times within 45 minutes. A 26 year old female psychotherapy patient indiscriminately voiced the word, "F---" 26 times in an office visit. A 35 year old man offered, "KnowWha-AhMean" 80 times in a psychotherapy session until I said, "No, what do you mean?" In each case, my ears began to hurt.

Over the years, rhetorical mannerisms have presented themselves in various forms: Ending a statement with OK? or Right? or All Right? Or responding to a statement one finds questionable/incredible with Seriously? or Really? And responding sarcastically to it: What? ... Whatt?!? Or confirming what was said by oneself/another: Fer-Sher or I Know That's Right. Or offering one's enthusiastic response to an enjoyable event - Like, Like, I was Like, Oh My God. You Know What I Mean? While another's response may be jaded/less than enthusiastic: Whatever. Or more enthusiastically: Totally! - I was, Like, It was Totally Awesome! And then there is the spoken upturned end of a declarative statement placing in question the veracity of the statement/the speaker's confidence in making the statement: The burglar came into our bedroom. It was really scary? For others' confirmation, one might hear You Know What I Mean? or Do You Feel Me?

During the past several years, I have become an avid viewer of CNN, following current events and political news via news anchors, talk show hosts, journalists, reporters, correspondents, senior analysts, commentators, moderators, pundits, political surrogates and attack dogs. I laugh to myself/at myself when I hear myself saying that "I saw it on CNN last night" for you see, my 36 year old television most frequently does not provide a viewable image. More accurately, "I heard it on CNN last night." While I am aware that I may have lost substantial communication by lacking nonverbal video, it has been interesting to rely on only one sense modality for incoming information. As such, I have for good and ill become more acutely aware of the spoken word by those who I hear on television. It has reminded me of my family therapy training when we would eliminate the sound and just watch the video-taped therapy sessions at varying speeds, looking for and finding interesting, informative and instructive forms of communication. Single channel information calls attention to repetitive patterns of communication via whichever modality is being utilized.

While the use of metaphor and colorful expressions may enliven speech and facilitate meaningful communication, it also appears that speakers take unnecessary side roads to convey their message to their possible detriment. The following represents repetitive words/expressions voiced on CNN that contribute to and reflect contemporary language in our culture.

Frequently, news show guests respond to questions beginning with Look and then continue with content that may be considered Talking Points for Messaging. Political surrogates Bring It On with accusations of Fake News which are usually followed by their statements that may be considered False Rhetoric/Alternate Reality/Alternative Facts. When a politician's statement/stated position go beyond reasonable assumption for practicability, it is said that He Got Out Ahead of His Skis or He Went a Bridge Too Far. If the politician persists in his belief despite clear, rational opposition, it is said that The Issue is Baked Into His Position. If he had been hinting about it before full, formal public announcement, He's Been Dropping Breadcrumbs. Some politicians commit Unforced Errors that may have Unintended Consequences. If a policy proposal is not enacted despite its frequent articulation and encouragement for adoption, It Never Gained Any Traction. If the politician is not eager for another's policy proposal to gain traction for her adoption and vote, she may Slow Walk It and Kick the Can Down the Road. When political attack dogs Speaking to an Audience of One ( POTUS ), begin their commentary with

Frankly/Quite Frankly/The Fact Is/The Fact of the Matter Is/The Reality Is/The Truth of the Matter Is, what follows should bear careful scrutiny for veracity, False Equivalency/Hypocrisy as they are attempting to Control the Narrative. When they receive vigorous Push-Back on that from another panelist, they frequently Walk it Back/Back Peddle/Pivot to Another Subject. News journalists may then Take a Deep Dive Into the Subject and Drill Down On It as they have A Lot of Information to Unpack. News analysts may try to Read the Tea Leaves of others' comments and Presidential Tweets as Shiny Objects to Distract From the Truth while attempting to determine if the stated position is a One-Off or a pattern. POTUS calls The Russia Investigation a WitchHunt/Hoax/WitchHoax despite intelligence agencies having Concluded with High Confidence that there was, indeed, Russian Interference with the 2016 Political Campaign and Election Process. The Mueller Report was completed and submitted without revealing Sources and Methods. The President claims his presidency offers Transparency and Disingenuously claims No Collusion/No Conspiracy/No Obstruction. The Speaker of the House Rebukes the President and he Counterpunches with personal attacks, name-calling and nick-naming as he plays a Zero-Sum Game. Responses to the issues of legal/illegal immigration, border-crossings and child care are Politicized, Monetized and Weaponized. As ongoing investigations and hearings continue debating Criminal versus Political courses of action and the House of Representatives attempts to demonstrate its ability to Walk and Chew Gum at the Same Time, the general public awaits a Game-Changer for a Return to Normalcy and Civility.

And so, At the End of the Day, due to the news content and all of the foregoing, I suffer incredulity fatigue, my ears hurt as a chronic condition and periodically my head has felt like a stopped up toilet bowl. Fortunately, it has not been a Fugazy. One of CNN's frequent sponsors comes to the rescue: "The only way ... When plumbing issues arise, at Len the Plumber - We're always available. Same day service. Seven days a week ... The only way to get a plumber today - Just call Len the Plumber." Period. Full Stop. S'AllRight. - SGG
